GLIMPSE OF THE PAST.

Oh, days of my boyhood! Those sunshiny days! When hope's brilliant rainbow Ulumined my ways.
When the hot blood of youth did

So leap through my veins, That my heart fille 1 with j y, At what it now pains. The earth seemed a garden, So pright and so fair, Brimful of delight and

Of pastimes most rare. Each man and each woman, Each girl and each boy, Seemed made and destined for The purest of joy.

The rain then brought gladness The storm d d inspire Great hopes of great conquests In earth's vast empire, While the sunshine was making Bright eyes brighter glow,

And youth with its hopes wrought A heaven here below. The birds then sang sweeter, The sun brighter shone,

The flowers more lovely Than any now grown. And people were kinder To me and to others,

And men vied in treating Each other as brothers. wh! scenes of my boyhood!

How life-like they look!
As clear to my mind's eye
As if in a book. They all were depicted

By art's sleight of hand,

Each place that I have touched on, By water or land.

That house without plaster; Its elean earthen floor, With fire place larger By far than its door. With cracks in the roofing

Revealing the stars; And Venus I knew not From red flery Mars. Looks just as I saw it

In long gone by days,
Its whitewashed clapboarding,
Reflecting the rays
Of a sun which was brighter Than any I've seen, Since childlike I romped with

The boys on the green. My mother, God bless her, I see her again, Stard in that old doorway,

There was a very pretty marriage at the residence of Air. and Mrs. Ed. Jefferson, East End, last Thursday evening, the parties being Mr. James Howard and Mrs. L. C. Overby, the widow of the late Thomas Overby. Mr. Howard is well-known in this city, especially with the young circle and his many friends no doubt wish him and his bride a long and happy journey through life. Rev. W. H. Dixon officiated.

Last Sunday was a day long to be remembered with the Odd Fellows the occasion being their anniversaly. As it is always a custom, most of the principal streets were paraded, headed by the Silver Star Band, after which they proceeded to the new brick church of the First Baptist in the lecture room where an able address was delivered by M.
